HONGKONG, WEDNESDAY, JULY 22, 1885.

Oun correspondent Sanitas, - whose brief letter appeared in Monday's issue, seeks to give a new aspect of the rather obstructive policy of the Imperial authorities in objecting to the continuation of the Praya from the Military Wharf to the Blue Buildings. It alleged that, while the Naval and Military Authorities at Home have been interposing unnecessary obstacles to a extension of the Praya between the Bath House and the Blue Buildings, the foreshore has been so neglected by the local naval and military magnates that it is breeding disease. Now, this The may be an exaggeration, although we have heard complaints made about this quarter of the harbour frontage. YESTERDAY evening Signorina Marchetti, the distinguished operatio singer, assisted by a lady amateur, Maestri Cattageo, Piron and Meneses, and several gentlemen amateurs, gave a vocal and instrumental concert in the Theatre Royal It is rarely indeed that a large audience can be got together at a public performance in Hongkong during the hottest months of the year, be the worth of the entertainment ever so great, and last night was no exception to the rule. It is probable, however, that if the programms had been published earlier than it was and received wider. publicity the attendance would have been greater. As it was, the dress circle contained a fair sprinkling of attenders, and down below most of the front seats were fairly well occupied. The entertainment itself calls for no lengthy notice, but it deserves very high commendation for its excellence, Signorina Marchetti, herself, of course, bore the burden of the work, and her brilliant singing gave the most unfeigned pleasure not only to those whose artistic education have made them familiar with classical music, but also to those whose knowledge

WE are, unfortunately, getting only too used to the breakdown of important cases at the Criminal Sessions of the Supreme · Court. The miscarriage of justice up to the present has doubtless been due chiefly "to the unhappy friction existing between one of the magistrates and the Crown prosecutor; but in the two cases which were heard before His Honour Mr Ackroyd yesterday, one of homicide at Wong-nei-chong and one of earring snatching, in both of which cases the prisoners were discharged, we can only ascribe the breakdown of the cases to certain uncalled-for and unwise remarks made by the acting Judge. His Honour, in summing up in the case of homicide, drow the attention of the jury to the fact that the woman had not given the name of any the men ,who had been concerned in the assault until one man was arrested; that the man who gave his evidence had done nothing to try and prevent the assault, and had not said anything to the Police until he was sent for at twelve o'clock at night. and he also pointed out that the prisoner minds the statement made by the prisoner to three witnesses to the effect that he had taken part in the killing of the man, and giving his reasons for so doing.

His Honour's concluding remarks to the Attorney General were as follows :--

'I think that this case, as well as the first case, has entirely failed by the action of the Police. So far as I can judge, the first case failed through the action of the Inspector, by the way in which he conducted the identification ; and I think this case also has failed on account of the Inspector not having asked who the men were at the time the woman came to the Station. Of course it throws very great doubt on the evidence of a witness when he says he can identify some one and then identifies no one until some one has been arrested.

With regard to His Honour's statemen to the jury, we could only have imawords issuing from th mouth of a counsel for the defence When Inspector Swanston received information from the witness Wong Kwai of the homicide which had been perpetrated, and was informed that the woman knew the men who had committed the crime, he very naturally, and quite properly accompanied her at once to the spot. The first thing to be done was to arrest the perpetrators of the crime, not to stop and haggle over their names. With regard to the other witness, Fu Achat, not trying to prevent the assault, and then not giving any information to the police until he was sent for: His Honour must be sadly wanting in experience of Chinese character if he expects a lingle individual to interfere in a quarrel in which four men are arrayed against one, or to come forward as a witness unless obliged to do so. With regard to the prisoner not running away as the others did, we have it distinctly in evidence that as soon as the police appeared the prisoner did try to escape.

The statement of His Honour that the case failed through the action of the police, we cannot but regard as utterly unclusive, and the statement made by the prisoner to the Inspector, the constable (Tsang Afat) and the Sergeaut Interpreter, to from their minds was, we believe, unpre- much the same race as Ghinghiz and Timur- up in oblivion and unremembered as is the oedented.

CHINA AND ILI AND KASHGARIA. (From Our Correspondent).

.. Tientsin, July 7. Bad news for China comes in from both Ili and Kashgaria, but beyond the generalization that the Chinese have suffered reverses little can be elicited. The accounts in the Moscow paper of Mr Katkoff (whose other items on the programme the son of Yakub, aided by Russia with pianoforte, Maestro reported-small cannon, from Samarkand, regions of Dzungaria in which the desert probably acting in concert with the insurgents of Kashgar, and certainly acting with the connivance or under the direction of Russia, have risen against China, and

-so far-successfully. The loss of Kashgaria and Dzungaria will be a boon to China. The nineteenth province was so remote, the space separating | ble, have been dry, for many hundreds of the Kashgarian territory from China proper was immense, antres vast and desarts idle,' the populations were alieu and hostile, and the nomadic tribes of the desert were as fierce and untameable as wild cats. China is better without Kashgaria and Dzungaria, and-for the present-there is no Yakub there to dread. While that wonderful old Andijani leader of men lived he figured in the minds of the Manchus, and with good reason, as a probable Moslem conqueror of China. On this account the tedious and most costly expeditions of Tso were ordered and supported right through times of terrible difficulty.

There had not, like the other men, run away. . He is persistent sap and mine, breach, and-Blso told the jury to dismiss from their finally—assault and capture. The present state of Mongolia, too, gives anxiety to Peking. It is sure that a considerable part of the tribal leaders of the Mongols want to go over to Russia if only to escape the cruel conditions that have been enforced by with profit. Then again to the Northward China for the last 600 years. The conditions are strange and unprecedented. Mongol family may rear more than three sons. Of these three only one may be a layman and marry; the other two must become lamas. If more than three sons are born, all over the limit of that number must be killed! immediately after birth. Thus, by restricting the growth of the people, a race formerly bold and fierce, given to wage wars in which the devastation was horrible and complete, is now but a feeble folk. The number of Mongols, males, including lamas, women and children, barely amounts to two millions of souls. The

In fact much or most of the histories of the Central Asian peoples are lost, and there is small hope of being able to unearth any satisfactory accounts of the great movements

The next storm gotien city, once populous, prosperous, filled with a race prone to war and conquest, rich with the spoils of India, Persia, and China, and now utterly forgotten. The name of the city, the name of the nation that built it and dwelt there, have been in oblivion for many centuries. In the wide stretching high grounds of Asia there are hundreds in huge sand mounds, and under these sand cities. Even the names of the tribal peoples who raised the walls and buildings are not known even by legend. Perhaps if excavations were made as at Babylon, Nimroud, Nineveh, and in Egypt, some discoveries might be made which would enable us to know the course of Turanian history, the rise and fall and causes of the extinction of great nations, and assist us to comprehend how it came to pass that so great a portion of the earth, once fertile, is now dry sand.

The complete ruin and atter desolation are ascribed to two main causes. The regions now treeless and sterile were once wooded and fertile. The great rivers, whose beds and banks are everywhere visiyears. Of the great fluvial system nothing is left but the swampy lakes of Lub-nor and Koko-nor, around which sparse rush-beds are found, on which the wild camel feeds. But everywhere in the huge desert, as in the Suez desart -- especially around the ruins: of Serapeum-tree atumps, often, of large girth, are found. One cause of the sterility, depopulation, intolerable heat in summer and deadly cold in winter, is that the Turanian peoples destroyed their woods. The famines, the droughts, the floods of China, come mainly from like causes. When the depoisment of Tura was complete, aridity and sterility began, the people died out, and at this moment the prodigious region which once supported tens of millions of cities, is a desolute sandy desert.

But some organic physical changes have been brought about by other causes than origins have never been investigated, and

Part 1II. M.T, ... 83.00

Part IV. T-Y, $3.00 A Reduction of ten per cent. will be allowed to purchasers of Ten or more copies.

This Standard Work on the Chinese Language, constructed on the basis of Kaughi's Imperial Dictionary, contains all Chinese characters in practical use, and while alphapetically arranged according to the sounds of the oldest dialect of China, the Cautoneso, it gives also the Mandarin pronunciation of all characters explained in the book, so that its usefulness is by no means confined to the Contonese Dialect, but the work is a practically complete Thesaurus of the whole Written Language of China, ancient and modern, as used all over the Empire, whilst its introductory chapters serve the purioses of a philological guide to the student. A Supplement, arranged for being bound the Aganey's Office.) and used by itself, and containing a List of the Radicals, an Index, and a List of Surnames, will be published and sold separately.

Meteorologists will find an interesting and valuable contribution by Dr. Fritsche, on "the Amount of Precipitation (Rain and Snow) of Peking," showing the results of observations made at the Imperial Russian Observatory at . Peking, from 1841 to 1880. "Notes on the Dutch Occupation destined to ports beyond San Francisco of Formosa," by Mr. Geo. The Notices of New Books include a most generous and appreciative review of "The Divine Classic Nan-Hua," and the Notes and Queries are as usual very interesting.'-North-China "A substantial and reliable Review which the number. -II. K. Daily Press. Trubuer's Oriental Record contains the following notice of the China Review:-The present publication, judging by the number now before us, is intended to occupy a position, as regards China and the neighbouring countries, some what similar to that which has been filled in India by the Calcuita Lieview. The great degree of attention that has been bestowed of late years. upon the investigation of Chinese literature. antiquities, and social developments, to say nothing of linguistic studies, has led to the accumulation of important stores of information, rendering some such channel of publicity as is now provided extremely desirable; and contributions of much interest may fairly be looked or from the members of the foreign consular services, the Chinese Customs' corps, and the missionary body, among whom a high degree of Chinese scholarship is now assiduously cultivated and who are severally represented in the firstnumber of the Review by papers highly creditable to their respective authors . . Some translations from Chinese novels and plays are marked by both accuracy and treshness of style; and an account of the career of the Chinese poet-stateman of the eleventh century, Su Tung-p'o, by Mr. E. C. Bowra, is not only historically valuable, but is also distinguished by its literary grace. Beside notices of new books relating to China and the East, which will be a useful feature of the Review, if carried out with punctuality and detail, we are glad to notice that 'Notes' and 'Queries' are destined to tind a place in its pages also.
